

THEY SAY—

This is a world off in.
He knows his business.
Boys should learn trades.
Be truthful in all you say.
This is a world of progress.
All that glitter is not gold.
Think well before you speak.
Do you know what to say always.
The negro attorney has lots to earn.

A truthful person is an honest person.

The greatest man is he who helps humanity.

Judge O'Donnell is making a good judge.

The Pen and Pencil Club is a actor.

It is the good man who does good deeds.

You should speak well of those you know and say nothing against those you don't know.

Because others speak ill of one don't you do so.

Preachers who condemn gambling are guilty by some acts more serious.

The Summer School's may be doing some good.

You may run from those who are your best friends, but in course of time you will regret it.

If you want to be respected, respect yourself.

The Metropole club is a great institution.

Be truthful always it will pay.

Your first duty is to be true to your friend.

You never see your mistake until it is too late.

You should not be too certain in any thing.

Some people don't know when they are doing well.

Be what you are and not what you pretend to be.

Some people don't know when they are doing well.

We often lose a good and sincere friend in our efforts to please those who want to use us.

Don't imagine because you are on top that you don't need friends.

We get too conceited at times.

True friendship is only found in those who are honest.

Do what you think is best and then you will not make any mistake.

This is a world in which you will find trouble.

Don't change old friends for new ones.

You will never see your mistakes until it is too late.

Major Sylvester is a model commander.

There will be several changes in the District government soon.

Correspondents are numerous.

They write much and say a little.

If you want to know the news read THE BEE.

The democratic party, in Maryland, will give the republicans a hard push.

If you don't know what you are talking about keep your mouth shut.

The Pen and Pencil Club is a good organization.

The next presidential candidate will come from the West.

Be sure that you stick to your friends.

Don't be too previous neither should you allow yourself to know too much.

Be certain that you are right and then go ahead.

A good man will do good deeds.

Some things will be done contrary to reason.

Politicians don't know it all.

Why not abolish the police court after the passage of the new bill.

The man who knows it all should never be consulted.

You may deceive some people but you can't deceive all the people.

You may deceive your friends some times but not all the time.

When you have a good friend hold him. He is hard to find.

INFLUENTIAL FOREIGNERS.

Prince von Hohenlohe is credited with having made this remark about the German emperor: "His greatest failing is that he does not think there are any limits to his will."

The sultan of Sulu is a little man, with a no more striking personality than is given him by his costume. When standing he hardly comes above the elbow of the average American.

Cheik Bey, the new Turkish minister to this country, has arrived, accompanied by his mother, daughter and two sons. He is said to be a keen-going sportsman and an extensive breeder of thoroughbred horses, in which he takes a great interest.

Mme. Severine, the editor of La Fronde, the newspaper in Paris conducted by women, is a power in the French capital, and she is absolutely independent and original in her ways of thinking. She has a villa in the village of Pierrefonds, whither she retires for a day or two when the pressure of her literary work threatens to overpower her strength.

The new Italian ambassador, Marquis Obizzi Malaspina Di Barbonari, is a man who is sure to attract attention at the American capital. He has had a meteoric career and will be the youngest of the ambassadors accredited to this capital and one of the youngest men in the entire corps. Less than five years ago the marquis was an undersecretary of the embassy in Washington, under Baron Fava.

President Loubet is driving his master of ceremonies to despair, it is declared. The president will not have ceremony. When his visitors arrive he rushes forward and gives a grip of the hand before his bewildered attendant has made the usual announcement. And now, copying the example of the king of the Belgians and no doubt with happy recollections of his struggling bachelor days, the president takes Mme. Loubet out to dine at a cafe in the open air. Parisians are delighted.

PROMINENT PERSONALITIES.

Lord Charles Beresford, who is about to resign his naval position to lead one branch of the opposition in English politics, has been in the navy since he was 13 and has worked himself up through sheer merit.

Though Mrs. Grover Cleveland is seldom heard of nowadays, she does a great deal of charity work. Not long ago she quietly made a tour of the down part of New York city to personally observe the workings of a relief society in which she is actively interested.

Mr. Field, one of the Irish members of parliament, has suggested an inquiry into the causes of the enormous emigration from Ireland at present. He states that 8,665 persons left Irish ports last month, against 8,105 for the corresponding month of the previous year, and that the total for the five months of the present year was 18,197.

George Gould, like his father, is a silent man. He divides his secrets with no one. Taught in a practical school, he has the ability, the wealth and the experience to develop his plans on a scale of great magnitude. It is predicted he will make a greater reputation as a master financier than his father left, and that he will accumulate, if he has not done so already, a much larger fortune.

Walter Campbell, who has just published a book of humorous poems, illustrated by Princess Louise, is said to be one of the best amateur reciters and Scotch story tellers in British society. Always a great favorite of the late queen, he would bring a smile to her lips at every moment with his quaint tales, his imitations of the peasantry's ways and doings—copied first-hand from real life—their shrewd, canny sayings and their homely mother wit.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES.

A little lemon juice cooked with boiled rice, it is said, will keep the grains separate and distinct.

Because gelatin, onions and milk are notable scavengers of the air they should never be left uncovered.

It is said that a sack of the best salt left standing in the kitchen will absorb not only the smell of frying fish, but other unpleasant odors.

In making a custard pie remember that the baking is an important item. Experience may teach one just the point at which to interrupt the cooking. The best way is to watch the pie and remove it from the oven the moment the custard rises—the boiling point. A custard pie is spoiled if allowed to boil in the oven.

A sandwich fork, which is worth buying for the fun there is in playing with it, is large and three-tined. It has a standard on the under side, and on the upper side a bit of simple machinery. This machinery ends near the handle of the fork with two small handles, which are pressed together with the fingers, like a pair of scissors. This tion with perfect safety.

All uncomfortable and injurious steel spring pressure is avoided.

The pad is held in place by woven bands, which retain an equal pressure in all positions of the body.

It can be worn in bed, a great desideratum to the young as tending to a perfect cure.

It is the only suitable truss for children and females.

The proper amount of pressure can be brought to bear and maintained in any position without pinching or chafing to the wearer.

It will cure hernia if placed on the patient sufficiently early.

Excepting umbilical, it is the best truss ever offered for all kinds of hernia.

It is so perfect and comfortable in its adjustment that the patient in a short time forgets he is wearing it. (See the certificate of Mr. Daniel Johnson.)

Sent postage paid to any address on receipt of price; $3 for single and $4 for double truss.

In ordering, give location of hernia, right or left side and measurement.

Satisfaction given—money refunded when the truss is returned in good order Address:

The Correct System of Raising Children

Sad Awakening of a Lady Who Knew All About It, or Rather Thought She Knew

Now, behold, there came a time in the land when all the women belonged unto clubs, writes Josh Wink in the Baltimore American. And every club was devoted unto the solving of problems which were better tackled single-handed, or might as well have been left alone in the first place.

And great was the sale of encyclopedias, for all the women had to write papers about things of which they had never heard.

Verily, they asked more questions than a conundrum social. Now, it came to pass that certain of the women of the land said one to another:

"Let us have a mothers' convention."

And the others answered with one voice: "Won't that be cute? Let's."

And it was so.

Now, when they had gathered in the place of the convention there arose one among them with a paper.

And the heading of the paper was: "The Only Real Tip on the Correct Mode of Raising Children."

And the woman who had the paper was a maiden of uncertain age, if you took her word for it.

But, verily, if you took a look at her there was neither uncertainty nor doubt in thy mind.

And she read from the paper, and told them all about it, even all.

So that, when she had finished, one among them rose up and said:

"Behold, there is nothing more to be said or to be written. Let us go hence and go to the mark-down sales and the places of the soda fountains."

So they all departed, and the woman who had read the paper awoke the next morning to find her picture in the dailies.

For she had sent it unto the men that are called editors.

Now, it also came to pass that this woman had a sister, who was married, and who furthermore had four children.

And the married one was going away for a journey and would leave the children at home.

So she called unto her maiden sister, saying:

"If it seemeth fair in thy sight, it would be real nice of you to take care of the little darlings while I am away."

And the sister smiled a glad smile and vowed that she would be happy to do it.

And when she took charge of the children she took also with her the paper that she had read.

Behold, in two minutes the first paragraph thereof was rendered null and void.

For the children yielded not unto her singing, nor would they sit themselves still and listen unto the stories which she had advised being told unto them.

When she sought to inculcate good principles by means of a tale of noble actions, she was asked to "Cut it out."

When she suggested that the children play the game that is called "Ring Around a Rosy," she was asked to go back to the woods.

When she sought to tempt them with "Puss in the Corner" she was urged to get an alarm clock and come to herself, for she was in an apparent slumber.

When she tried moral suasion upon them they continued to eat from the jam jar and to wipe their fingers upon the lace curtains.

When she endeavored to get them to desist from their ways, which she called "naughty," they beseeched her to go and get a reputation.

And she took the paper that she had read unto the convention and tore it into fragments.

And she threw the fragments into the street.

And she went out into the yard and selected some long, vigorous switches from a peach tree which grew there.

Behold, when the mother returned unto her home she found her children eating from off the mantelpiece and behaving with much obedience.

While the maiden aunt sat in the midst of them with a gad in her hand and a grim look in her eyes.

Now, there is a large and valuable moral attached unto this tale, which the same is:

It is Always Easy to Raise Other People's Children, Until You Try to Do the Trick.

HYPNOTIZED HIMSELF.

Seventeen-Year-Old Boy Exerts Influence Over Himself Which is Beyond His Control.

Self-hypnotized while looking into the eyes of his reflection in a mirror, William J. Spinney, of Fitchburg, Mass., is beyond his own control. He is in a state where medicine will not affect him in producing much-needed sleep, and the power of the ordinary

When under his own influence he is said to have assured himself that he could bend backward to the floor and not be injured, and he did so. Then he threw himself backward on his head and neck, and did not seem to suffer from the heavy fall.

In the night he disappeared, and toward morning was brought home suffering from a badly cut forehead. He had been found in the dead of night at Cleghorn, two miles away. He had broken a window pane in a residence, and was sawing his finger across the ragged glass to prove that it could not hurt him. In explanation he insisted that he was Jesus Christ.

This was a week ago. Nearly a month ago he assured himself that he need not sleep, and since that time he has not closed his eyes. Morphine, injected with a view to forcing him to rest, is said to have nearly killed him. He eats little, and is never still a moment.

Physicians are inclined to believe the boy is crazy. His brother, who is a student of hypnosis, insists that the boy is only under his own spell, and that he will come out of it in time.

HYPNOTIZING HIMSELF.

hypnotist to "suggest" things to him will not avail. He has been for days in a condition where he obeys his own "suggestions," and these have been always to set himself new tasks. Just where it will end no one can say, though his family hope that when his condition has worn upon him sufficiently he will say to himself: "Lie down and recover your normal faculties."

"When he does that," says an elder brother, "William will come to himself, and he is the only person who can cause that result."

Spinney is only 17 years old, but he has been interested in hypnosis for a long time. A traveling operator worked on him for a headache a few weeks ago and cured the ailment. Immediately afterward Spinney exerted the influence on some of his companions, and that night, believing that he might be able to hypnotize himself, he stood before a full-length mirror, and succeeded.
